You are quietly looking at a book when your sister comes over and grabs the book out of your hands because she wants to read it. You want to shout at her.

You go to the kitchen to get one of your favorite cookies. Your brother runs to the cookie Jar, and takes the last cookie and eats it. You are angry.

You and your friend are drawing pictures. He teases you about the color of your rainbow and hurts your feelings and you think of a mean name to call him.

You are watching your favorite TV program and your older brother comes and changes the channel. You are mad and want to take the remote control away from him.

You have just made your bed and are ready to play with your friend when your little sister comes in and pulls the covers off. You want to grab her and put her out of your room.

Ask these questions after each statement:

How would you like to be treated?

What would you say or do if you are a peacemaker?
